

Questions about Medical Geology and the Rise of Young Cancers, as Seen from Rachel Carson's Childhood Home in Western Pennsylvania

Amy Moran-Thomas

At the Rachel Carson Center, Prof. Moran-Thomas will be working on a chapter about how Rachel Carson's childhood years in a western Pennsylvania coal town shaped her life's work, including her later interests in tracing the uptick of cancers linked to environmental exposures. Moran-Thomas's RCC presentation will share from this work in progress, "Questions about Medical Geology and the Rise of Young Cancers, as Seen from Rachel Carson's Childhood Home in Western Pennsylvania."
