

Peer-Coaching for the 'Sticky-Bits' in Transdisciplinary Research Collaborations

The peer-coaching on 'sticky-bits' in research collaboration enters a second round: After three successful pioneering sessions, the Enjust working group on Environmental Justice in Transdisciplinary Contexts invites you again to a (pre-)spring series of online peer-coaching.

Transdisciplinary collaboration in the sense of working between academic and nonacademic worlds can be very rewarding—and very difficult. People curious about or involved in transdisciplinary practice are welcome to join this safe sharing and learning format for an exchange on (the navigation of) challenging moments of collaboration.

You can either share your own 'sticky' moment and receive peer-coaching or simply participate as an active listener and support the coaching and collective learning process.

Date and Time

20 February 2026, 14:00–16:00 CET

23 April 2026, 14:00–16:00 CET

More Information

Further sessions are planned.

Stay in the loop for more info by dropping your email ID here!

Zoom Link

With Judith Bopp (Rachel Carson Center),
Juneseo Hwang (University of Hamburg), and
Jeanne Féaux de la Croix (University of Bern)

